Check Out Events at the Bookstore – And Host Your Own

The Rutgers bookstores are convenient, welcoming venues for events – whether you're attending or planning your own. Recently, the New Brunswick bookstore hosted Brittney Cooper, Chanel Craft Tanner and Susana Morris, authors of the book Feminist AF, for an engaging, in-depth discussion, Q&A and book signing. They also hosted a reading from Justan Mitchell, author of Thoughts From the Mind. All events are free to attend. If you're interested in hosting a book signing or other event, contact Don Royal at droyal@bncollege.com. Catering is available in New Brunswick & Camden through the café!

Special Screenings at the Rutgers Cinema

Upcoming movies for October at Rutgers Cinema include 007's No Time to Die, Halloween Kills, Dune, and a special screening of The Rocky Horror Picture Show on October 24.

Barnes & Noble College's First Day® Program for Students

Last month we introduced you to First Day. If you're interested in participating in the Spring 2022 semester, please notify the bookstore by November 15th. First Day is an inclusive access program from Barnes & Noble College that focuses on supporting academic success by making it easier for students to receive needed course materials. With First Day, students enrolled in participating courses get direct access to their digital course materials right in Canvas, before the first day of class. Costs are included as a course material charge, saving students not only time at the beginning of the semester, but also providing students with an average savings of 40-60%. Faculty interested in learning more or adding courses to First Day, contact Don Royal at droyal@bncollege.com.
